The PUETNITZ (N 55/P 03) airfield was not occupied by Soviet Air Force soldiers. The landing field and the E-W runway were intact. The former hangars at the northwestern border of the field housed a nationalized enterprise. Only one of the six hangars there was still damaged, the others having been repaired. The laborers employed in the factory were quartered in the buildings at the northern border of the field. German police guarded the airfield.
